Winter Comes To Washington

Al Moran captured this wintry shot of a CSX freight train in our local area. Al wrote: “An eastbound train climbs the old B&O-PRR connector at Benning. The Shepherd Branch to Blue Plains is to the left, probably after it was abandoned (don't have the date of the photo in front of me) or very close to it. The Landover Line is to the right behind the trees and brush. The connector is now a storage track so this shot is theoretically possible but would be hard to come by.” Today the line to Blue Plains is still in place but severed in numerous locations.
